WIZARDRY OF WIRELESS SHOWN IN STORY OF TITANIC TRAGEDY

Minute By Minute the World
Learned of Disaster
By Messages.

The wonders of wireless telegraphy have never been so vividly shown as they have been in the case of the loss of the great steamship Titanic. Hundreds of messages were exchanged between the Titanic and the ships at sea, which transmitted them ashore, to two hemispheres. While the Titanic was sinking the world at large was given fleeting glimpses of what was going on, by the operators of the ships in the fog, hundreds of miles away. Here, in brief, is the chronology of how the wireless messages came in this most wonderful demonstration of the modern magic of science:

April 14, 10:25 p. m.—"S. O. S."—"S. O. S."—"S. O. S." is flashed out by the operator aboard the Titanic, which has run into an iceberg at night.

April 14, 10:35 p. m.—"S. O. S." is heard by the wireless operator at the Cape Race station, and realizing it is the code signal for danger at sea, hurriedly answers.

April 14, 10:40 p. m.—"Hurricane! Hurricane! We need help!" comes the distress cry from the Titanic as soon as the operator at Cape Race gets his instrument in tune with the liner. "We have struck an iceberg. We need help."

April 14, 10:42 p. m.—"Am transferring call for help to all ships at sea," answers Cape Race operator. "Where are you? How's weather?"

April 14, 10:50 p. m.—"We're in 40-46 north latitude and 50-14 west longitude." [Which is about 900 miles from New York.] "Weather cold—much ice—fog."

April 14, 11 p. m.—"Hurricane! Hurricane! We're filling and sinking by the head. Women being taken off in lifeboats. Hurry! Hurry! Hurry!"

April 14, 11 p. m.—"Got your message," Allan line Virginian flashes both to Cape Race operator and to Titanic. "Proceeding to Titanic."

April 14, 11 p. m. to midnight—Intermittent messages from Titanic: "Hurricane! Hurricane! Sinking by the head."

April 14, 12 midnight—"We're about 120 miles from Titanic. Hurrying with all speed," the operator on Virginian flashes to the distressed ship and stations.

April 15, 12:10 a. m.—"Have heard distress calls," wires steamer Olympic. "We're hurrying. Are in latitude 40-43 north and longitude 61-18 west. Should reach you soon."

April 15, 12:10 a. m.—"Making all haste," wires steamer Baltic. "We're only about 200 miles east."

April 15, 12:27 a. m.—"Hurricane! Hurricane!" again comes call from Titanic. "We're sinking," the message suddenly becomes blurred. The wireless operators on land and sea strive frantically to get in tune with the distressed liner, and blue flame splutters from their instruments as they pound at the transmitters. The Virginian is at this time 160 miles away from the Titanic.

April 15—"Carpathia reached Titanic's position at daylight," is message sent to New York from Captain Haddock of the White Star liner Olympic. "Found boats and wreckage only. Titanic had foundered about 2:20 a. m. in 41:16 N. 50:14 W. All boats accounted for. About 875 souls rescued, crew and passengers. Latter nearly all women and children. Leyland line steamship Californian remaining and searching exact position of disaster. Carpathia returning to New York with survivors. Please inform Cunard."

April 15—Throughout forenoon Carpathia sends fragmentary messages that are relayed by other steamers through Cape Race and other wireless stations, estimating that 1900 lives were lost in the wreck of the Titanic.

April 15, 2:30 a. m.—Steamer Olympic, relaying messages of Carpathia, begins to send a revised list of the rescued to New York, more than three hundred names being sent up to daybreak.

April 15, 5 p. m.—The Allan line steamer Parisian, reporting by wireless to Montreal by way of Halifax, announces that she has none of the Titanic rescued passengers on board.

April 15, 5:20 a. m.—Relayed message is received at Montreal from Carpathia announcing that Charles M. Hays, president of the Grand Trunk Railway, is among the survivors. Hays' wife and daughter are also reported among survivors on Carpathia.

April 15, 5:30 a. m.—Arrived on scene of disaster too late to be of service," is message sent by Captain Gambell of the Virginian to Allan line at Montreal. "Am proceeding to Liverpool."

April 15, 5:30 a. m.—Sable Island cable ship Minia reports through the wireless station at Halifax, N. S., that she has sighted great mass of wreckage, but no boats or rafts of the Titanic.

April 15, 6 a. m.—Marconi report received by White Star line at New York from Captain Rostron saying that there are 383 survivors on the Carpathia.

April 15, 10 a. m.—Message received by Marconi Wireless Company from its station at Cape Race indicating there are no survivors aboard the Parisian or Virginian.

April 16—Another relayed wireless message is received from Captain Rostron of the Carpathia at New York, which reads: "Am proceeding to New York unless otherwise ordered, with about 800. After having counseled with Mr. Ismay and considering the circumstances, with so much ice about, consider New York best. Large number of icebergs and twenty-mile field of ice with bergs amongst."

April 16, 12 m.—A second wireless message is received from the steamer Parisian saying that after steaming through much heavy ice looking for passengers of the Titanic she encountered none. The Parisian reports that the weather was so intensely cold that even if any persons might have clung to the floating wreckage they would in all probability have perished from exposure before they could have been picked up. The Parisian is expected in Halifax on April 17 with supplementary news of the disaster.

April 16—Messages from President Taft at Washington are sent to the revenue cutter Gresham at Boston and the Acushnet at Wood's Hole, Mass., ordering them to proceed to sea to meet the Carpathia. The President has also ordered the scout cruiser Salem, equipped with the best wireless in the navy, to proceed from Hampton Roads to meet the Carpathia and send a completely revised list of the Titanic's survivors to the government at Washington.

PRINCE OF WALES
PARIS PUPIL
Throne Heir Goes to France to Study and Be Guest of Americans.

PARIS, France, April 10.—France is showing the greatest interest in the arrival today from London of the Prince of Wales, who is to pass several months in the French capital with the Marquis de Breteuil, whose wife is Edith Garner, daughter of the late William T. Garner of New York.

Viscountess de Breteuil, sister-in-law of the marquis, also is an American girl, Edythe Grant. The American colony in Paris therefore takes a lively interest in the sojourn here of the prince, who is coming with him tutor to complete his education in French.

The Marquis and Marchioness de Breteuil possess a mansion on the Avenue du Bois de Boulogne, in which a suite is to be placed at the disposal of the young prince.

In welcoming the prince the newspapers express the hope that he, like his grandfather, King Edward, will become fond of Paris. The Marquis de Breteuil was a close friend of King Edward for years.

INTEREST IN THE GRAND CAMPAIGN

seeing them we are certain that you will never rest until you have won one of them.

Candidates May Work Anywhere.
Another feature of the contest that is appealing to candidates is that they are privileged to secure votes and subscriptions anywhere. They are not obliged to work only in their own districts, but have the wide world as their field. This will enable them to secure much additional help. The same is true of voting. Persons voting are not confined to voting for the candidates in their own districts, but may vote for whomsoever they choose, regardless of which district they may reside in.

Big Combination Offer.
The Bulletin has arranged with the San Francisco Bulletin, which will soon begin the publication of Abe Ruef's own story, to furnish subscribers with the Coast paper at an additional cost of only $2.00 a year. This prize is a special one, and includes the regular price of the Bulletin, $8.00, and $2.00 for the San Francisco Bulletin, or the two together for $10 per year.

Abe Ruef's story is written by himself and will prove intensely interesting. It tells of the old "Graft" times in San Francisco before the fire, and deals with people who helped make San Francisco notorious. You should not miss this story.

Unpaid Subscriptions Count.
All subscribers to the Bulletin who are in arrears on their subscription accounts, and who pay up the same, are entitled to votes, according to the amount paid. When you pay your subscription be sure you receive the votes to which you are entitled. Coupon Expires Tonight.

Do not overlook the fact that the Special 5000-Vote Coupon expires tonight at 7 o'clock, and all of these possible votes should be brought in before this time, as this affords an excellent opportunity to get started right in the contest and once started right it will prove next to impossible to lose out. But do not forget—tonight at 7 o'clock the coupon expires.

Come in and Talk It Over.

If you want more information or advice before entering, do not hesitate about coming in and talking over your case with the Contest Manager. Having been through many such campaigns, he can no doubt suggest some plan for you to follow that will enable you to come out victorious. And if your situation at present is such that you could not hope to compete successfully, you will not be urged to enter. But before you throw away such an opportunity, one that may never come to you again, come in and talk the matter over.

Married Women as Well as Single.
Married ladies as well as single are privileged to enter the contest. No restriction as to their state in life is made. A number of nominations have already been received from married women, as well as numerous inquiries, and we will state that whether you are married or single, you are entitled to enter.

Anyone May Vote.
Anyone who desires to vote may do so by clipping the coupons which appear in each issue of the Bulletin, and it is not necessary to subscribe in order to vote for your favorite. The coupons clipped from each issue of the Bulletin have a value of ten votes each and any person may fill these out and bring or send them to the Contest Department of the Bulletin. Special voting-ballots are issued on all subscription-payments, according to the amount paid, and these ballots are good any time during the contest and right up to the close. But the coupons clipped from the paper are only good for ten days from date of publication and must be voted before that time.

Persons living in one district are not confined to voting for candidates in that particular district, but may vote for candidates in any district. Instructions for Voting.
Enter the name of the young woman whom you wish to see win one of these splendid awards AT ONCE. She may win the handsome 1912 completely equipped "Regal" automobile, one of the elegant $550 "Remington" player-pianos, a perfect $100 diamond ring or one of the other prizes.

Better still, get the lady to enter her own name and then vote for her. Those who get in on the start have the best chance of winning, hence it is desirable that the name of your favorite candidate be entered without delay. Candidates who enter this contest do not necessarily have to be subscribers to the Bulletin. Enter your name and your friends will do the rest. You will be surprised to see how rapidly the votes come in and what a little effort is required to win one of the rewards. Get in at the start and encourage your friends to vote for you; the rest will be easy. You will never know how popular you are until you enter the contest.

How to Win.
Any young woman who desires to enter the contest and win one of the magnificent awards offered should see to it that her name is at once sent to the Contest Manager.

Candidates should at once interest their friends in the contest, and by united and energetic action induce as many persons as possible to vote for them. Thousands of free votes are distributed daily, as each copy of the Bulletin contains a coupon good for 10 votes. By getting your friends, the majority of whom are subscribers to the Bulletin, to cast these votes for you, and then securing their subscriptions, you can add immensely to your vote-total and immediately become a contender for these splendid prizes, all of which are worth so much effort.

The nomination-blanks will only appear for a limited time, and only a limited number will be accepted. Cut the nomination-blank from this issue and send it to the Bulletin office with your name and address or the name and address of your favorite candidate. A subscription is not necessary, but will naturally help your candidate, and a good start means much. The names of persons making nominations will not be divulged.

The prizes will be awarded at the finish of the contest, and may be disposed of as the winners see fit.

Votes Issued on All Payments.
Votes are issued on all subscription payments, both old and new. Be sure you receive your votes when paying or prepaying your subscriptions. Every subscription payment, even for one month, earns votes, and these may be voted for any candidate or held until the close of the campaign if the subscriber chooses.
